

End-Semester Exam

Total Marks: 45

30 April 2026

Attempt all questions. Guideline: 600 words each; 15 marks x 3.

1. Write an essay on the shift of focus from canon formation to questions of subjectivity and epistemology with special reference to the genre of re-writing or revision.
2. Write an essay on Friday's silence and its significance in the text. For instance, what questions does it pose for Barton, Foe, and for the stories they wish to tell? How does it shape the positions they take? What are Barton's motivations in wanting to know Friday and making him speak / making his silence speak? Why does she think the story of the island cannot be told without Friday's story?
3. In what ways is narrative held to be important in Foe and Chronicle of a Death Foretold? How is the role of narrative different in both texts? What role does time and the unreal or magical play in the way the story is told in Chronicle of a Death Foretold?

NOTE:

1. Do not use bullet points. Write in full sentences and paragraphs.
2. Explain your ideas and examples fully and remember to connect your examples clearly to the point you are trying to make.
3. Do not summarize the plot of a literary text. This adds nothing new. Your response should focus on your ideas and interpretations of the text.
